

AUDIO CONFERENCE
ENSURING RELIABLE PROCESSES FOR INFECTION PREVENTION
Register Now:
Part 2 – April 9, 2009, 11:00 am-12:00 noon

Several months ago we learned the basics of building reliability into our infection prevention improvements through standardization and redundancy and measurement

Join us on this call for a review of core reliability principles and expert consultation putting these principles to work for your project.

- Share the process you are working on
- What is the high level process flow?
- Where are the defects or opportunities for improvement?
- What will or have you tested?

The reliability principles are effective and applicable wherever you need improvement or better compliance. Learn these approaches for your infection prevention work and use them to enhance all of your improvements.

- VAP or Central Line Bundles
- Catheter associated UTI
- Contact Precautions
- Hand Hygiene Strategies
- Med/Surg Units
- ICU/CCU
- Operating Rooms
- Emergency Rooms

FACULTY

Frank Federico is Executive Director for Strategic Partners and a patient safety specialist at the Institute for Healthcare Improvement. His areas of focus include improving perinatal care, supporting the IHI 5 Million Lives Campaign interventions, and using the reliability design model. Frank coaches teams nationally and internationally.
